A Kansas City Lady Darkened Her Gray Hair and Stimulated Its Growth by a Simple Home Process.

She Tells How She Did It

A well-known resident of Kansas City, Mo., who darkened her gray hair by a simple home process, made the following statement: "My hair is naturally gray, but I have managed to stimulate its growth and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound and 1/2 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently, then every two weeks. This mixture restores scalp troubles and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair. It does not stain the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray haired person look 10 to 20 years younger.—Advt.

WHO SHOULD BE BOSS AT HOME?

Husband an Employer and Wife an Employee Is the Amazing Master-and-Servant Suggestion of a Wife Who Has Been Married Twenty Years and to Whom the Term "Boss" Is Anathema.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

The husband should not be boss of the home, but he should be the domestic employer—his wife the trusted employee.

That is the somewhat amazing domestic relationship which is advocated in a letter I have just received from "A Wife." To me a boss by any other name would be as unbearable, but "A Wife" evidently doesn't feel that way about it. She is perfectly willing that her husband should occupy the position of domestic boss, so long as he doesn't claim the title—and undoubtedly he also is perfectly willing.

Why should any competent woman ever wed, if she is to regard her husband only as an employer, her marriage as "going out to service"? What's the point in working for board, wages and an occasional tip in your husband's home, if you are able to earn three or four times as much in an office, a shop, or even a home belonging to some one else.

The answer, of course, is that husbands, viewed merely as employers, attract merely the lazy and incompetent employees, the women who cannot do well-paid work and who are looking for a job from which the worst slackers cannot be fired, provided only that she remains technically "loyal" to the man who has contracted for her services.

SATISFIED WITH A LIFE JOB AND A MASTER.

There are plenty of marriages of that sort. There are wives who couldn't keep a situation as cook or general housemaid for ten minutes, but whose husbands and children must submit, day after day, to dirty, disordered rooms and badly-cooked meals. If one of these wives really loved her husband, if wifehood meant to her something more than a soft job from which she could not be dislodged, she would never make him so uncomfortable.

On the other hand—let us be perfectly fair—there are men who seem to mistake the marriage altar for an employment agency, who wed because they are tired of boarding and because they do not wish to pay the wages of servants. Unfortunately, the women chosen by these men do not always look on marriage with the same "eye to business," and some of them do look for love, tenderness, delicacy and other qualities for which an employer is not likely to find any special use.

It doesn't seem to me that the ideal picture of husband and wife as employer and employee is a very happy one. Perhaps the reason we have so many matrimonial strikes is because, in certain instances, the marriage relation resembles that which exists between capital and labor. Do Evening World readers believe that the husband should be master and the wife servant?

20 YEARS MARRIED, WANTS A PURE BUSINESS ARRANGEMENT.

"Dear Madam: Boss! Ugh! The very word inspires contempt. Why a boss? Boss defined means a selfish, domineering person, a tyrant. Marriage ought to be founded on mutual respect, and where this exists bossism receives its knockout blow. Surely a woman cannot respect the man she intends to manage. While the male boss is just as contemptible, for he invariably picks out for his victim a weak, timid creature, whom he bullies to his heart's content. Just why Woman Suffrage is blamed for the female boss is beyond me, for, let me remind 'Primitiva,' we had just as many Henpeckos in grandmother's time as now. A woman who interests herself in a cause bound to help the downtrodden is very seldom selfish. It is more generally the parasite, who thinks only of self, who wants to be boss, and she is an 'anti' as she has no time for any one but herself.

"I have been married twenty years and have seen many sides of life and have come to this conclusion. Every home ought to have a nominal head of the family, and this, for the children's sake, should be the father. Mother is always mother to her kiddies; but how could a small son look up to his daddy if mother made him ridiculous by assuming control? While there are many spring for the home. Consequently, each of us considers her what is a boss.

"Of course there are times when two heads are better than one," at which times we talk things over and always come to some satisfactory agreement.

"By following the above plan, I can frankly say that we have lived very happily for the past ten years."

WIDENER FUNERAL HELD IN HIS ART GALLERY

Only the Family and Intimate Friends Attended Services—Body in Mausoleum.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—The body of Peter A. B. Widener was placed in the Widener family mausoleum in Laurel Hill Cemetery today.

The funeral cortege was made up of twelve motor cars, which conveyed only Mr. Widener's family and most intimate friends. Charles Cook, long his faithful valet, was numbered among them. Three hundred persons prominent in the industrial and financial worlds attended the services in the art gallery of the Widener home, Lynnewood Hall, Elkins Park. There were no honorary pallbearers.

There is growing doubt that Mr. Widener left his priceless art collection to the city. Andrew Wright Crawford, secretary of the Art Jury and City Parks Association, said today the city should immediately begin the construction of an art museum to cost not less than $2,000,000. Mr. Crawford added:

"If its delay for ten years in building such a museum, the city has unquestionably imperiled its chances of receiving any of the five great art collections owned by Philadelphia."

There are careless people who go years, instead of days, without glasses, when by their use they could be made comfortable and happy.

Little eye troubles easily lead to big ones, unless steps to correct them are taken.

We can tell you whether glasses will do much or little for you.

Harris Glasses, if we "really and truly" believe you require them—cost $2 or more.
